DecayingMidwest

For demolition contractors

Your demolition, documented from the air.

Cost to you: $0

FAA Part 107 certified pilot
$1M liability insurance

What it costs you

A full media package, billed at zero.

Aerial photography is something contractors normally pay for. I do it free, because I want to document these buildings before they're gone.

Invoice

From DecayingMidwest
To your company

Aerial photos before work starts	$0
Progress flights during demolition	$0
Final aerials of the cleared site	$0
Interior photo and video record	$0
Editing and full resolution delivery	$0
License to use every photo in your marketing	$0

Total due $0

Credentials

Licensed and insured.

FAA Part 107 certified

Licensed for commercial drone work. Airspace approval handled before every flight.

$1M liability coverage

Your company named as additional insured on the certificate.

I sign your waiver and follow your site rules.

No flights over your crew.

Nothing gets posted without your approval.

Your biggest jobs vanish the day you finish them.

Good photos are what's left to show the next client. Most demolition work never gets any.

What you get

Every angle of the job.

Flown before work starts, during demolition and after the site is cleared.

The whole site

Wide views for bids, owner updates and your records.

The structure up close

Detail shots that show the scale of what you're taking down.

Straight down

Overhead progress shots, flight after flight.

Northridge Mall and Aguilars Welding, Milwaukee. Both demolished.

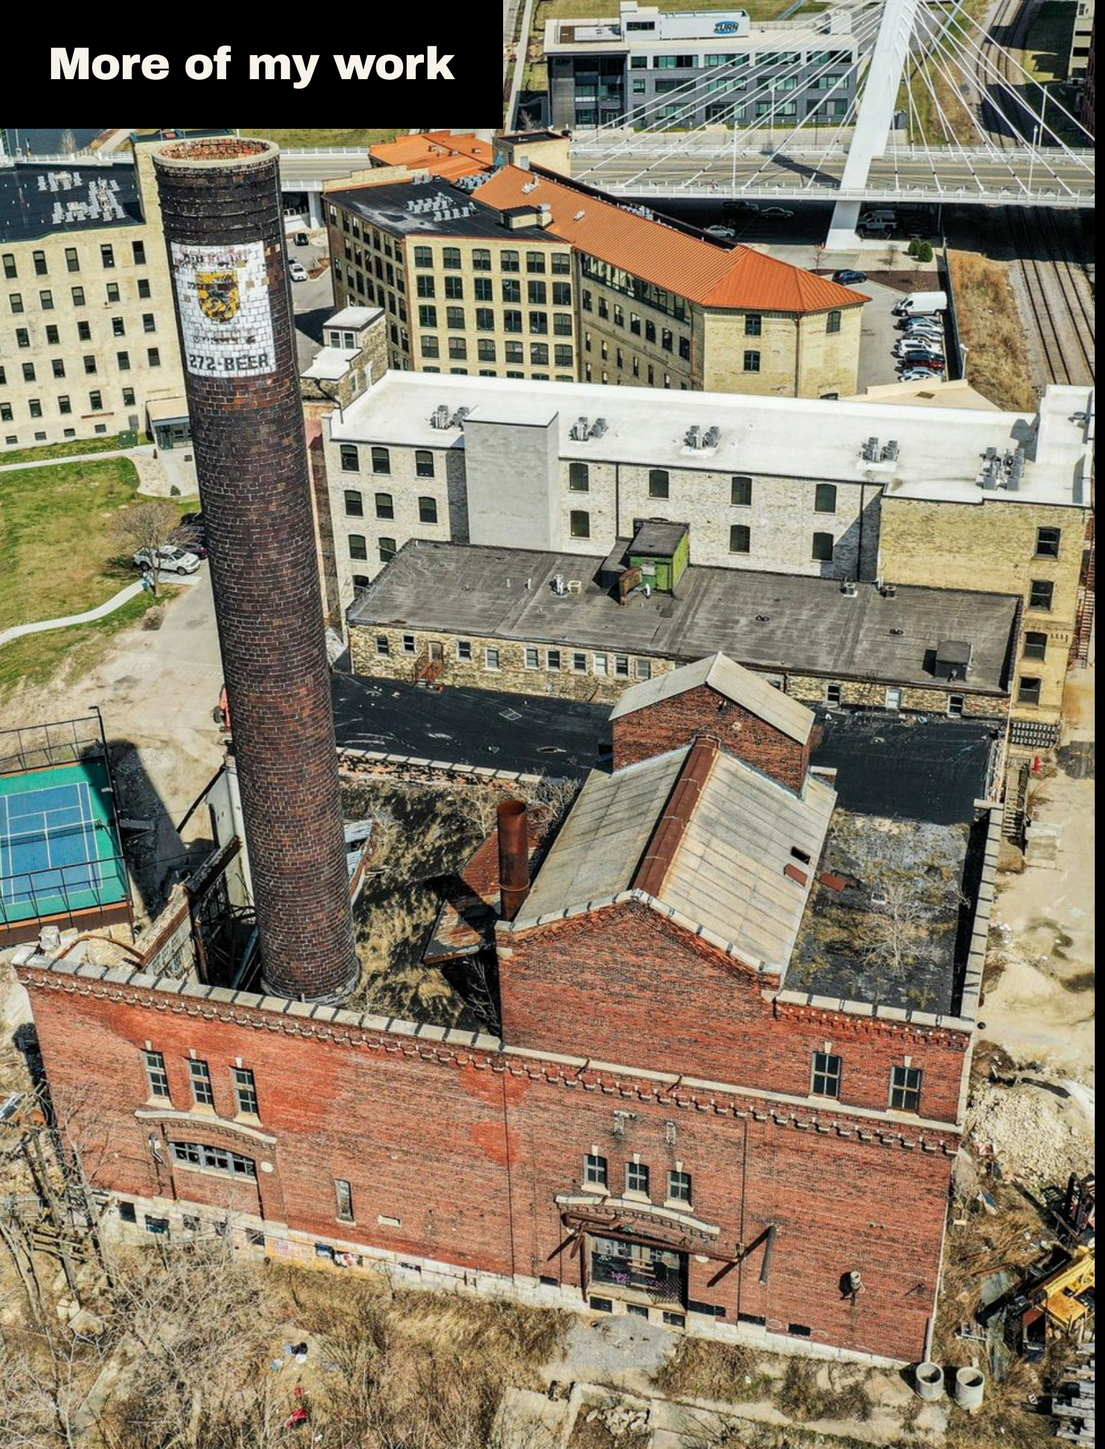
Jamestown Mall, Missouri Demolished

Where every project starts

The inside, before cleanout.

Every project includes one interior walkthrough, and it is the one thing I need to take a job on. Most happen before salvage starts. On large landmark buildings I can come in after work is underway.

More of my work



How it works

Four steps. All of them free.

1

Send the job

The address, your timeline and who to coordinate with on site.

2

Paperwork

You get an insurance certificate with your company on it. I sign your waiver.

3

First visit

The interior walkthrough and the first flight. Every project includes both.

4

Flights and delivery

Progress and final flights on your schedule. Edited photos sent after each one.
